

The Prophet_(SAW) Ordered

Seize your tears and wipe away others,
to restrain my tears this I cannot uncover.
Swallow your grief and share others',
Sharing the grief of others is a big bother.

Eat less and feed the needy with care,
to starve myself, is more than I can bear.
Bury your pride, lest it puts others despair,
to restrain my ego, it's a burden I can't bear.

You claim to love the Prophet_(SAW) so dear,
then why not follow what he made so clear?

Veil love of your child before an orphan's eye,
but to veil such affection, my emotion defies.
Call not your wife with love before a widow's eye,
To restrain my emotions, my heart denies.

"Cleanliness is half of faith," he ﷺ would remind,
To keep my surroundings clear, I fall behind.
Be kind to your neighbors, gentle and refined,
but guarding such harmony, overwhelms my mind.

You claim to love the Prophet ﷺ so dear,
then why not follow what he made so clear?

Keep kinship alive; let mercy never depart,
to crush my pride fully, I lack this art.
Guard your soul do not let humility impart,
to crush my pride fully, is where I fall apart.

He ﷺ pleads justice even for the unbelieved,
Such breadth of mercy stands too high for me.
If you are Muslim, let no lie be weaved;
Yet truth in every breath is just beyond me.

You claim to love the Prophet ﷺ so dear,
then why not follow what he made so clear?

An insult returns to the one who casts it away,
to leave it unanswered, my tongue won't stay.

For forgiveness learn to forgive, Allah says,
to pardon easily, this is hard to display.

You are fashioned for society; ego must give way, to erase my pride fully, I cannot sway.

O sinner Haleem, your Lord is Just and Wise;
He aids not those who wrong themselves with lies.

You claim to love the Prophet ﷺ so dear,
then why not follow what he made so clear?

His way is light for hearts that persevere,
In word and deed, his guidance still draws near.
