

Do Not Blame Allah

This world is but an examination hall;
Let righteous deeds prepare us for His call.
The Lord has clearly shown us wrong and right;
We choose the path of darkness or light.

We were not made to live for self alone;
To spread love and soften every heart of stone.
Do not blame your Lord for seeds you choose to sow;
Your deeds may bring the bitter grief you know.

Do not blame Allah for seeds your hands have sown;
We reap the grief from deeds that are our own.
Whatever good you find is from His grace;
Our faults arise when truth we fail to face.

When failure comes, blame not your Lord;
Reflect, correct, then strive for His reward.
Allah wrongs no soul in anything at all;
We wrong ourselves whenever into sin we fall.
Some sorrows spring from choices we have made;
Some test our faith, let patience never fade.
The prophets faced the hardest trials, yet stayed true;
Through steadfast patience, their devotion grew.

Do not blame Allah for seeds your hands have sown;
We reap the grief from deeds that are our own.
Whatever good you find is from His grace;
Our faults arise when truth we fail to face.

Eat wholesome food, but never waste your bread;
Remember those who go to sleep unfed.
The wealth, authority, and knowledge you bear;
Are gifts from Allah, so use them well and share.
When illness strikes, seek treatment with due care;
Then trust your Lord and turn to Him in prayer.
Earn lawful bread through labour of your hand;
Trust Allah fully and heed His every command.

Don't blame Allah for seeds your hands have sown;
We reap the bitter fruits our deeds have grown.
Whatever good you find flows from His grace;
Our faults are ours, the truth we must embrace.

Do not harm your neighbor by hand or tongue;
What worth is worship, when a heart is stung?
Restrain your anger; let forgiveness fill your heart;
With gentle mercy, give the wounded a new start.

Support the weak and help all those in need;
Faith proves itself through every righteous deed.
Human greed brings much of grief and misery;
Blame not Allah for man's oppression and tyranny.

Do not blame Allah for seeds your hands have sown;
We reap the grief from deeds that are our own.
Whatever good you find is from His grace;
Our faults arise when truth we fail to face.

Satan may tempt but cannot force our fall;
We choose our deeds and must account for all.
Give people all their rights, and let conflict cease;
Spread mercy, uphold justice, and spread peace.

Allah multiplies every good deed's reward;
Each sin is counted once, repent and seek your Lord.

Haleem, show mercy in all that you do;
Serve His creation; seek His pleasure too.

Do not blame Allah for seeds your hands have sown;
We reap the grief from deeds that are our own.
Whatever good you find is from His grace;
Our faults arise when truth we fail to face.

When failure comes, do not accuse your Lord;
Reflect, strive on, and seek His great reward.
Give people their rights, let peace and mercy reign;
Be just to all, His pleasure you may gain.
